Residence Halls To Become Reality

Budget And Control Board Unanimously Approves Plan

The S.C. State Budget and Control Board unanimously approved the plan for residence halls at Coastal, in an action taken in Columbia on May 27, 1986.

Coastal Chancellor Ron Eaglin said, "We've passed the final hurdle and we're ready to move ahead with the project. On-campus housing at Coastal will be a reality."

Six apartment-style residence halls will house approximately 425 students. The three-floor buildings will be supervised by a resident manager and six resident assistants. Construction will begin in August 1986, with completion of the project expected in August 1987.

The $5 million tab for construction will be raised through public bonds and repaid through student housing fees at no direct cost to taxpayers.

The decision to build the dorms represents "a tremendous vote of confidence in Coastal" according to Eaglin, which "shows that the state recognizes us as an institution on the move."

Chancellor Eaglin expressed the view that residence halls "will establish a nucleus for campus-oriented programs that will give students an opportunity to make the most of their college experience."

'Be More Than You Can Be' Says Eaglin

Ed. Note: The following message is from Dr. Ronald G. Eaglin, Chancellor.

As you begin college, you are entering a new phase of your life. Many of you see this as an opportunity to become a "new me" and are asking yourselves what this new person should be. Of course, this is something you will have to decide for yourself. I can tell you, however, what Coastal Carolina College wants for you and from you.

There are two things we ask our students to contribute—their minds and their involvement. Certainly, the mind is our primary concern. We want you to reach your greatest potential by preparing well, being assertive in class, and taking responsibility for learning. We don't expect you to do this alone. We have a dedicated faculty to help guide you. However, the ultimate responsibility for developing your mind rests with you. You must decide for yourself whether or not to become a contributing member of this academic community, then take the initiative and do it.

The second thing we ask from you is involvement. We want you to be a part of campus life. Become active in student government; and support the college by attending cultural activities, sports events, lectures, and social functions. You will never have another time like this to find out about yourself, to explore new areas, to discover your likes and dislikes, to decide who you want to be. The opportunities are here, but it is up to you to make the most of them.

Dr. Ron Eaglin

We want you to become the most successful person possible. If you truly set yourself toward developing your mind and being involved during the next four years, you will leave Coastal Carolina College knowing who you are and where you are going.

—Ron Eaglin

Squatriglia Urges Student Participation

Ed. Note: The following message was written by Robert W. Squatriglia, Associate Chancellor Student Development.

Welcome to the Coastal Carolina College campus and community. We are delighted that you are with us, and it is our sincere hope that you will both enjoy and profit from all that you do with us.

Our college is an exciting place to be and I urge you to make a commitment to participate in one of the more than forty student organizations on our campus and, as a part of that commitment, that you participate with that group to the fullest extent possible. I also urge you to be an active participant in all classroom activities. Your active participation in activities both in and out of the classroom will provide you with the opportunity to grow, learn, and contribute in your own unique way. Our intercollegiate and intramural athletic-recreation programs are also a central part of college life. I urge you to participate in those as well.

Student services, specifically designed to serve all students who use them. New student orientation is one such program and it is designed to assist you in establishing a sound base for your college years. You are cordially invited to use all campus services as you chose—for they are there for you.

Robert W. Squatriglia
Associate Chancellor
Student Development

Coastal Carolina College is an exciting place to be. You will learn a great deal about yourself while you attend the college, but you will also learn about others. You have the responsibility to seek out services, offices, and opportunities throughout the year. We have a responsibility to work with you. We look forward to our time together with you.

Best wishes and good luck in 1986-87 and in all of your endeavors. The Coastal Carolina College family cares about you and we are proud that you have chosen to be a member of our college community.

Chanticleers Schedule Features NCAA Foes

"When my players saw the schedule, they probably thought I should be taking a test to see if I were on drugs," said Russ Bergman, head coach of the mens basketball squad at Coastal.

The schedule has been released for the Chanticleer's 1986-87 initiation into the NCAA Division I.

The schedule consists of 17 away games and three regular season tournaments. The Chanticleers play the Irish Nationals in an exhibition game Nov. 4 before traveling to Winston-Salem, N.C. to open the season against Wake Forest University.

USC-Coastal then competes in three NCAA tournaments beginning as they host the 5th Annual Sertoma Tip-Off Classic. The Chanticleers will also compete in the University of Akron Tournament in Akron, Ohio, and the Central Florida Tournament in Orlando.

Other noteworthy opponents include Cincinnati, Xavier, East Tennessee State, James Madison, the University of New Orleans, UNC-Wilmington and North Carolina A&T.

USC-Coastal plays only eight conference games in 1986-87 and all eight will be against teams that were Division I last year. Bergman has scheduled home dates with Radford, Campbell, Baptist and Augusta in preparation for the Second Annual Big South Tournament.

Deadlines Near For Financial Aid Apps.

If you are applying for financial assistance, contact the Financial Aid Office in Room 206I of the Student Center, or call extension 2313.

There are several financial aid programs available over the year. These include: Pell Grants, Supplemental Educational Grants (SEOG), College Work-Study (CWS), National Direct Student Loans (NDSL), and Guaranteed Student Loans (GSL) and PLUS loans, in addition to regular scholarships and grants.

You must check with the Financial Aid Office to determine your eligibility for these programs.

Some of the programs are very limited and funding is quickly exhausted. Also, deadlines for certain of these programs may have already passed for the Fall Semester of 1986.

The last day to complete Guaranteed Student Loan applications in order to be paid at fall registration is July 1, 1986.

The last day to turn in your Pell Grant Student Aid Reports, (if your file is complete), in order to be paid at fall registration is August 1, 1986.

If you have any questions regarding financial aid, contact the Financial Aid Office immediately.

Off-Campus Housing Information Available

The Off-Campus Housing Information Service (OCHIS) is an information and education service designed to serve the students and prospective students of Coastal.

OCHIS provides information on housing available to students, along with information on tenant's rights and responsibilities. The OCHIS Office also provides housing-related information: a checklist for renters, roommate request forms, and a car pool information service.

All of this information will be mailed upon request or may be picked up at the office.

The office maintains a detailed Vacancy Book on all housing available as well as a Roommate Request Book. The roommate book contains a list of students desiring roommates.

You are encouraged to visit the office in the Student Center and examine these sources. You are also welcome to use their telephones to speak with the rental contact persons regarding any special questions that you may have. It is strongly recommended that you visit a prospective rental facility first before making any commitment, and that you not contract any rental without being completely satisfied with the facilities.

Coastal assumes no responsibility for either tenants or landlords, nor does it assume responsibility for any housing provided through OCHIS.

For more information, contact the Housing Service Office in the Student Center.

The second Summer Session begins with registration on July 10. Classes begin on July 14 and will end on August 16.

Summer classes are also offered at Myrtle Beach Air Force Base and Georgetown.

Some of the courses offered during the summer sessions include courses in: data processing, economics, education, english, history, nursing, music, physical education, government, international studies, film, literature, religious studies, swimming, theatre, recreation, biology, art, accounting, business, commercial law, probability & statistics, real estate, management, policy, chemistry, programming, composition, geography, geology, german, health education, mathematics, algebra, calculus, music, philosophy, astronomy, anthropology, sociology, psychology, finance, trigonometry, analytic geometry and management.

Puskar Named Dean Of Social/Behavioral Sciences

Elizabeth Kelly Puskar of Myrtle Beach has been named dean of the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences at Coastal Carolina College, Chancellor Ron Eaglin has announced.

Dr. Puskar is currently assistant chancellor for academic affairs at Coastal. In her new position, she will be responsible for the administration of the six disciplines in the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences: anthropology, geography, government and international studies, history, psychology, and sociology.

"Dr. Puskar has established a solid background in higher education, both in the classroom and as an administrator."

—Chancellor Eaglin

Puskar replaces John Vrooman who was recently named head baseball coach and associate athletic director.

In making the announcement, Chancellor Eaglin said, "Dr. Puskar has established a solid background in higher education, both in the classroom and as an administrator. She has been, and will continue to be a valuable asset in the management of the college."

Dr. Puskar joined the Coastal faculty in 1974 as an associate professor of teacher education. In 1978 she became director of counseling, a post she held until her appointment as assistant chancellor for academic affairs in 1983. In addition to her administrative responsibilities Dr.

Puskar designed and taught two courses, Interpersonal Communications and Psychology of Women. She also has served as a professor in Coastal's graduate program and as an instructor and workshop leader for various programs offered through the Office of Continuing Education.

Puskar has conducted workshops and made presentations throughout the state to groups such as the South Carolina Career Women's Conference and the Southeastern Conference for College Counseling Center Personnel.

Dr. Puskar received a bachelor of science degree in elementary education from Indiana University of Pennsylvania, and a master of education and doctor of philosophy, both in counselor education, from the University of Pittsburgh. She is an associate member of the American Association of Marriage and Family Therapy, approved by the National Board for Certified Counselors.

The Chanticleer is a student publication of Coastal Carolina College

EditorRichard N. Weldon

Member: South Carolina Press Association Collegiate Division

Wanted: Involvement

This special edition of The Chanticleer is being published for orientation sessions to be held this summer at Coastal.

Hopefully, it will be somewhat informative, but beyond that-it is also a bit of a preview edition of what the newspaper will be like in the coming school year.

Plans are in the works for expanded news coverage, more photos, sports coverage, and other event and activity schedules.

However in order to have a successful year at Coastal, interested bodies will be badly needed. To work on this, and other publications.

Involvement will be the key for 1986-87. Without it, nothing will happen.

President Sprinkle Welcomes All To Coastal

Ed. Note: The following is a message from Jason Sprinkle, president of the Student Government Association.

WELCOME! On behalf of the students of USC-Coastal Carolina College, I proudly welcome you to one of the fastest growing campuses on the east coast! Few colleges and universities can offer as much as Coastal Carolina College—with its unique opportunities in education and student life.

With an average yearly air temperature of 71.1 degrees, Coastal's academic atmosphere provides for a very comfortable study environment, whether in or out-of-doors. (Occasionally, even one or two classes can be seen in session outside in our wonderful Spadoni Park.) Generally, however, classes are held inside and led by some of the most qualified and respected professors in the state.

Another advantage is the unique opportunity for individual tutoring. With a college of our size, professors are more willing, and able, to take the time to help students on an individual basis. This provides the students with a better education than many who attend larger institutions.

Instead of feeling like "just another number," here at Coastal, we are all individuals with separate needs and we are recognized as such.

Student life?!

Boasting 40 active student organizations—student life at Coastal is definitely up there with the best. (What am I saying?? We ARE the best!!!) We offer a wide range of activities and organizations including (but not limited to): Student

Jason B. Sprinkle
SGA President

Government, a Concert Choir and Ensemble, Campus Union, intramural sports, Upstage Theatre Company, various Greek organizations, fraternities and sorority, honor societies, Student-Faculty Committee that governs campus policy, Chanticleer (newspaper), Afro-Am, Atheneum (yearbook), Archarios (literary magazine) etc...just to name a few!

These clubs and organizations help in many ways, not only to sustain a high level of campus life and events, but also to provide for a well-rounded college experience.

One again, welcome to Coastal Carolina College and if I can assist you in any way just drop by the Student Government office or give me a call.

Enjoy the summer and we'll be looking forward to seeing you in the fall.

Spring Protests Seem To Rival Ferment Of Anti-War Movement

By Jessica Snyder

On a recent April morning at the University of Arizona, ex-hippies, punks, other students and faculty protested in front of the administration building against UA research into Star Wars weaponry.

At the same time, on the UA Mall across campus, still other students erected a Central American shantytown. The shanties—previously symbols of South African segregation—stand now in protest of U.S. involvement in Nicaragua.

Later in the week, students lured from their studies into the spring sunshine would shout their views of the U.S. bombing of Libya.

And the same week, students against cruelty to research animals picketed the university's Medical Center.

So it went at Arizona and countless other colleges—not only traditional hot spots like Berkeley but throughout the nation—as the school year ended with a degree of activism and political ferment not seen for more than a decade.

But unlike the 1960s and early seventies, when the war in Southeast Asia and the military draft dominated campus attention, students' interests and passions this year ranged from the liberal to the conservative.

It was a spring in which student-aid cuts or the banning of Coors beer on campus was as likely to evoke protests as the bombing in Libya.

"Students are sick and tired of being portrayed as not caring," observes Tom Swan, president of the U.S. Student Association (USSA) in Washington, D.C.

Others cite national prosperity, the arms race, a relative peace and even new drinking laws as reasons why protest spread so broadly this year.

Last spring, student activism abruptly exploded around the issue of campus investment in segregationist South Africa.

The anti-apartheid movement spread even further this spring, but observers also note an impressive creativity and organization in this year's protests.

University of Illinois students opposed to the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings balanced-budget law, for instance, shipped lemons to President Reagan with the message "Gramm-Rudman is a sour deal."

In response, Illinois students mailed postcard pictures of apple pies to their congressmen, praised efforts to reduce federal spending.

Many credit a new generation of students for the increase in activism. Freshmen and sophomores seem more like their counterparts in the 1960s than their relatively quiet older brothers and sisters, they say.

"In Tucson, we're seeing a new generation of activists," says James Jordan, a 26-year-old linguistics major.

Jordan, who led Star Wars protests at the university, also helps train groups in nonviolent protest tactics.

From that perspective, he sees a new enthusiasm on the part of 18 and 19-year-old students.

"Kids are growing up and looking at their older conservative brothers and sisters," he says, "and they rebel."

The traditional peace community, greatly reduced in the aftermath of the Vietnam war, has been restocked by punks and high school students, he says.

"The increased activism is certainly making (USSA's lobbying) job a lot easier," testifies Swan. "Some senators and representatives are getting hundreds of letters (from students)."

They are getting the letters from the right as well as the left.

"It has to do with the Reagan generation," explains Tony Rudy, co-editor of The Minuteman, a conservative newspaper at the University of Massachusetts.

"The younger you are, the more likely to be conservative you are," he counters. "It has to do with six prosperous years without war under the present (federal) administration."

USSA's Swan asserts the enactment of higher drinking ages has created a "totally different environment on campus," one more conducive to political activism than self-indulgence.

In the liberal camp, Jordan says increased U.S. militarism shocked students into action.

"The world climate now is scaring young people and reminding older people of what they've been through," he says.

Among conservatives, Rudy says rightists at UMass-Amherst "came out of the closet" last spring when students sympathetic to labor unions tried to ban Coors beer from campus.

"We've been slowly building up ever since," he says. His conservative student paper now campaigns against Public Interest Research Groups (PIRG's), whose lobbying efforts have been funded by college fees.

"The right has taken the example from the sixties," he says. "We've seen their (liberals') protests to be effective."

Parking Is First-Come, First-Served

All Vehicles Are Required To Sport Parking Decals

Coastal has certain traffic and parking regulations that must be adhered to.

All persons who shall regularly or occasionally drive or park on the property of the College is required to register their vehicle with the Security Office.

Cost for one vehicle per school year is $10 ($3 for summer sessions).

Parking decals must be displayed on the left rear bumper of automobiles.

Parking decals give holders the privilege of parking on campus, but do not guarantee the holder a parking space. Parking is on a first-come, first-serve basis.

The maximum speed limit is 15 miles per hour on college property.

Any person desiring to appeal any traffic violation which they feel they may have been given through error or without just cause, may do so within 72 hours after the issuance, (Saturdays, Sundays, and Holidays excepted); otherwise the right of appeal is forfeited. Appeal forms are available at the Security Office.

Appeal motions are made through the Associate Chancellor for Student Development.
